Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, God’s servant. The adversary works through false prophets.

JEH implements ASV

27 "In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah, king of Judah, came this word unto Jeremiah from Jehovah, saying, 2 Thus saith Jehovah to me: Make thee "bondage, and bars, and put them upon thy neck; 3 and send them to the king of Edom, and to the king of Moab, and to the king of the children of Ammon, and to the king of Tyre, and to the king of Sidon, by the hand of the messengers that come to Jerusalem unto Zedekiah king of Judah; 4 and give them a charge unto their masters, saying, Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, the God of Israel, Thus shall ye say unto your masters: 5 "I have made the earth, the men and the beasts that are upon the face of the earth, by my great power and by my outstretched arm; and I give it unto whom it seemeth right unto me. 6 And now have I given all these lands into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, my servant; and the "beasts of the field also have I given him to serve him. 7 And all the nations shall serve him, and his son, and his son’s son, until the time of his own land come; and then many nations and great kings shall make him their bondman. 8 And it shall come to pass, that the nation and the kingdom which will not serve the same Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and that will not put their neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, that nation will I punish, saith Jehovah, with the sword, and with the famine, and with the pestilence, until I have consumed them by his hand. 9 But as for you, hearken ye not to your prophets, nor to your diviners, nor to your saviours, nor to your sorcerers, that speak unto you, saying, Ye shall not serve the king of Babylon; 10 for they prophesy a "lie unto you, to "remove you far from your land, and that I should drive you out, and ye should perish. 11 But the nation that shall bring their neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him, that nation will I "let remain in their own land, saith Jehovah; and they shall till it, and dwell therein.

12 And I spake to Zedekiah, king of Judah according to all these words, saying, Bring your necks under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him and his people, and live. 13 Why will ye die, thou and thy people, by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence, as Jehovah hath spoken concerning the nation that will not serve the king of Babylon? 14 And hearken not unto the words of the prophets that speak unto you, saying, Ye shall not serve the king of Babylon; for they prophesy a "lie unto you. 15 For I have not sent them, saith Jehovah, but they prophesy falsely in my name; that I may drive you out, and that ye may perish, ye, and the prophets that prophesy unto you.

16 Also I spake to the priests and to all this people, saying, Thus saith Jehovah: Hearken not to the words of your prophets that prophesy unto you, saying, Behold, the "vessels of Jehovah’s house shall now shortly be brought again from Babylon; for they prophesy a "lie unto you. 17 Hearken not unto them; serve the king of Babylon, and live: wherefore should this city become a desolation? 18 But if they be prophets, and if the word of Jehovah be with them, let them now "make intercession to Jehovah of hosts, that the vessels which are left in the house of Jehovah, and in the house of the king of Judah, and at Jerusalem, go not to Babylon. 19 For thus saith Jehovah of hosts concerning the "pillars, and concerning the sea, and concerning the bases, and concerning the residue of the vessels that are left in this city, 20 which Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon took not, when he carried away captive Jeconiah the son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, from Jerusalem to Babylon, and all the nobles of Judah and Jerusalem; 21 yea, thus saith Jehovah of hosts, the God of Israel, concerning the vessels that are left in the house of Jehovah, and in the house of the king of Judah, and at Jerusalem: 22 They shall be "carried to Babylon, and there shall they be, until the "day that I visit them, saith Jehovah: then will I "bring them up, and restore them to this place.

1 But there became also "false-prophets among the people, as also among YOU there will be false-teachers, they who will introduce sects of destruction, and denying the Despot having-bought them (in the market) leading-on themselves quick destruction.
Daniel was among those brought to Babylon. Daniel's record of Nebuchadnezzar's dream is the very base of prophecy concerning Gentile powers.

Daniel 2 ASV

26 The king answered and said to Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, Art thou able to make known unto me the dream which I have seen, and the interpretation thereof? 27 Daniel answered before the king, and said, The secret which the king hath demanded can neither wise men, enchanters, magicians, nor soothsayers, shew unto the king; 28 but there is a God in heaven that revealeth secrets, and he hath made known to the king Nebuchadnezzar what shall be in the latter days. Thy dream, and the visions of thy head upon thy bed, are these: 29 As for thee, O king, thy thoughts came into thy mind upon thy bed, what should come to pass hereafter; 30 and he that revealeth secrets hath made known to thee what shall come to pass. 31 Thou, O king, sawest, and, behold, a great image. This image, which was mighty, and whose brightness was excellent, stood before thee; and the aspect thereof was terrible. 32 As for this image, its head was of fine gold, its breast and its arms of silver, its belly and its thighs of brass, 33 its legs of iron, its feet part of iron and part of clay. 34 Thou sawest till a stone was cut out without hands, which smote the image upon its feet that were of iron and clay, and brake them in pieces. 35 Then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and the gold, broken in pieces together, and became like the chaff of the summer threshing-floors; and the wind carried them away, so that no place was found for them: and the stone that smote the image became a great mountain, and filled the whole earth.

contr. from u i. p. Bel a domestic and chief god of the Babylonians, worshipped in the tower of Babel; Ps. 105:17; Jer. 50:2; 51:44, and Dan. chap. 14, LXX. The Greek and Roman writers (Diod. Sic. ii. 8, 9; Plut. xxxvii. 19; Cic. De Nat. Deorum, iii. 19) compare him with Jupiter; but however, we are not to understand this to be the father of the gods, of whom the Orientals knew nothing; but in accordance with the peculiar Babylonian theology, in which all rested on the worship of the star, the planet Jupiter, called Zeus (Cic. De Nat. Decr. ii. 20), which [some of] the Semitic nations worshipped supremely as a god, and the author and guardian of all good fortune. It is therefore called by the Arabians the "Greatest Fortuna."

The planet Venus was worshipped with this planet (see u u u), Comp. II. 19, and see N. 11, No. 5. The devotion to this worship is shown by the proper names of the Babylonians compounded with the name Bel, as u u u, u u u, Beluga, Belibus, etc.

36 This is the dream; and we will tell the interpretation thereof before the king. 37 Thou, O king, art the king of kings, unto whom the God of heaven hath given the kingdom, the power, and the strength, and the glory; 38 and wheresoever the children of men dwell, the beasts of the field and the birds of the heavens hath he given into thy hand, and hath made thee to rule over them all; thou art the head of gold. 39 And after thee shall arise another kingdom inferior to thee; and another third kingdom of brass, which shall break rule over all the earth. 40 And the fourth kingdom shall be strong as iron, forasmuch as iron breaketh in pieces and subdueth all things; and as iron that crusheth all things, shall it break in pieces and crush. 41 And whereas thou sawest the feet and toes, part of potters' clay and part of iron, it shall be a divided kingdom; but there shall be in it of the strength of the iron, forasmuch as thou sawest the iron mixed with miry clay. 42 And as the toes were part of iron, and part of clay, so the kingdom shall be partly strong, and partly broken. 43 And whereas thou sawest the iron mixed with miry clay, they shall mingle themselves with the seed of men; but they shall not cleave one to another, even as iron doth not mingle with clay. 44 And in the days of those kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed, nor shall the sovereignty thereof be left to another people; but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever. 45 Forasmuch as thou sawest that a stone was cut out without hands, and that it brake in pieces the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver, and the gold; the great God hath made known to the king what shall come to pass hereafter; and the dream is certain, and the interpretation thereof sure.

Daniel 2:31. “This mighty image whose countenance and aspect was terrifying.”

DANIEL 2 ASV
36 This is the dream; and we will tell the interpretation thereof before the king. 37 Thou, O king, art a king of kings, unto whom the God of heaven hath given the kingdom, the power, and the strength, and the glory; 38 and wheresoever the children of men dwell, the beasts of the field and the birds of the heavens hath he given into thy hand, and hath made thee to rule over them all: thou art the head of gold.

JEREMIAH 27 ASV
5 I have made the earth, the men and the beasts that are upon the face of the earth, by my great power and by my outstretched arm; and I give it unto whom it seemeth right unto me. 6 And now have I given all these lands into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, my servant: and the beasts of the field also have I given him to serve him. 7 And all the nations shall serve him; and his son, and his son’s son, until the time of his own land come; and then many nations and great kings shall make him their bondman.

Jeremiah ASV

27. In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah, came this word unto Jeremiah from Jehovah, saying: 2 Thus saith Jehovah to me: Make thee bonds and bars, and put them upon thy neck; and send them to the king of Edom, and to the king of Moab, and to the king of the children of Ammon, and to the king of Tyre, and to the king of Sidon, by the hand of the messengers that come to Jerusalem unto Zedekiah king of Judah; and give them a charge unto your masters, saying, Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, the God of Israel, Thus shall ye say unto your masters: 5 I have made the earth the hand of the nations and the beasts that are upon the face of the earth, by my great power and by my stretched arm; and I give it unto whom I will. 6 And now have I given all these lands into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, my servant; and the beasts of the field also have I given him to serve him.

5. To these might be added Egypt, though outside of the Asiatic world. It soon shook off the yoke of Assyria and resumed its independence; but, endeavoring to contest with Babylon the empire of the East, it was defeated at Carchemish by Nebuchadnezzar and was compelled to retire from Asia. Some suppose that it was conquered by Babylon, and it is possible that for a few years Egypt may have recognized the supremacy of Nebuchadnezzar by paying tribute, but it was never a part of his empire.

The map of the Oriental world, as thus reconstructed, lasted about a century, though with varying boundary lines; as, for instance, Elam, or Susiana, sometimes formed a part of Babylonia, and at other times of Media. During this period Babylon was the metropolis of the East. It was raised to greatness by Nebuchadnezzar, who finished the Tower of Babel, raised the Hanging Gardens, and built great palaces. Two-thirds of the bricks unearthed in the ruins of Babylon bear his name. The city formed a square, on both sides of the Euphrates, covering an area of 130 miles, about that of the city and county of Philadelphia. It was surrounded with double walls, one of which is said to have been 300 feet high, and so wide that six chariots could be driven abreast along its summit. The greatness of the city, however, was short-lived. It was taken by the Medes and Persians, 536 B.C., and soon began to decline, though it remained in a decaying condition for nearly a thousand years afterward.

Antiquities of the Jews. 86

§ 1. Now when king Nebuchadnezzar had reigned forty-three years, he ended his life. He was an active man, and more fortunate than the kings that were before him. Now Berosus makes mention of his actions in the third book of his Chaldaic history, where he says thus:—"When his father Nebuchodonosor [Nabopolassar] heard that the governor whom he had set over Egypt, and the places about Cæsarea and Proconnesus, had revolted from him, while he was himself able any longer to undergo hardships of war, he committed it to his son Nebuchadnezzar, who was still but a youth, some parts of his army, and sent them against him. So when Nebuchadnezzar had given battle, and fought with the rebel, he beat him, and reduced the country from under his subjection, and made it a branch of his own kingdom; but about that time it happened that his father Nebuchadnezzar [Nabopolassar] fell ill, and ended his life in the city of Babylon, when he had reigned twenty-one years; and when he was made sensible, as he was in a little time, that his father, Nebuchadnezzar [Nabopolassar], was dead, and having settled the affairs of Egypt, and the other countries, as also those that concerned the captive Jews and Phoenicians, and Syrians, and towns of the Egyptian nations, and having committed the conveyance of them to Babylon to certain of his friends, together with the gross of his army, and the rest of their ammunition and provisions, he went himself hastily, accompanied with a few others, over the desert, and came to Babylon. So he took upon him the management of public affairs, and of the kingdom which had been kept for him by one that was the principal of the Chaldeans, and he received the entire dominions of his father, and appointed, that when the captives came, they should be placed as colonies, in the most proper places of Babylonia; but then he adorned the temple of Belus, and the rest of the temples, in a magnificent manner, with the spoils he had taken in the war. He also added another city to that which was there of old, and rebuilt it, that such as would besiege it after might no more turn the course of the river, and thereby attack the city itself: he therefore built three walls round about the inner city, and three others about that which was the outer, and this he did with burnt brick. And after he had, after a becoming manner walled the city, and adorned its gates gloriously, he built another palace before his father's palace, but so that they joined to it; to describe the vast height and immense riches of which, it would perhaps be too much for me to attempt; yet, as large and lofty as they were, they were completed in fifteen days. He also erected elevated places for walking, of stone, and made it resemble mountains, and built it so that it might be planted with all sorts of trees. He also erected what was called a pensile paradise, because his wife was desirous to have things like her own country, she having been bred up in the palaces of Media." Megasthenes also, in his fourth book of his Accounts of India, makes mention of these things, and thereby endeavors to show that this king [Nebuchadnezzar] exceeded Hercules in fortitude, and in the greatness of his actions; for he saith, that he conquered a great part of Libya, and Iberia. Diodorus also, in the second book of his Accounts of Persia, mentions this king; as does Philostratus, in his Accounts both of India and Phoenicia, say, that this king besieged Tyre thirteen years, while at the same time Ethbaal reigned at Tyre. These are all the histories that I have met with concerning this king.

Town Planning is an important feature of Babylonian architecture, as is evident from this map of the capital.

CYCLOPEDIA OF UNIVERSAL HISTORY, Vol.1A, p.259

Herodotus declares the walls to have been fourteen miles in length on each side, or fifty-six miles in circumference. This would give an area of one hundred and ninety-six square miles. Ctesias, who also wrote from personal observation, fixes the length of the walls at ten and a half miles on each side, or forty miles in entire compass, giving an area of one hundred and ten square miles. These are respectively the largest and the smallest estimates of the size of the city which have reached us from antiquity.
The adversary showed his dragon nature in Babylon. These same evils are steadily increasing today.

Cyclopedia of Universal History, Ridpath, Vol. 1A, p. 257

Whatever mankind had to sell was offered, and whatever the needs of the world demanded was purchasable, in the emporiums of that great city. The life of the capital was the life of trade and commercial rivalry.

Under these conditions the Babylonians became greedy of gain. Avarice grew upon what it fed on, and the covetous spirit dominated almost every other feeling. Whatever would bring money was for sale. The domestic virtues were recklessly flung away for the means of further gratification. Every woman once in her life must offer herself to strangers publicly before the temple of Beltis; for by this means the crowd of strangers in the city would be increased. Maidens were sold at auction, for thus the wealthy princes and libertines of the surrounding nations would be drawn to the unscrupulous market. The father or brother, with his daughter or sister, stood ready to barter for money the pleasures due only to love.

The prime motive of all this avarice was the passion for luxurious living. Babylon was the paradise of gouty and lust. Whatever ministered to the appetites and senses was eagerly sought and enjoyed without scruple. Adornment of the person, rich garments dyed with costly dyes, jewels of untold value, costly viands gathered perhaps from alien lands, fragrant oils for perfuming the body—every thing that could excite or appease human desire was demanded and found and wasted in luxurious and riotous abandonment. The banquet and the feast brought drunkenness and revel. The tables were spread with riches which no appetite could consume. Dark wines were poured into goblets of gold. Tropical fruits were heaped in plates of silver. The palace halls were harems; for polygamy was the usage of the land and city.

Not only were the people brave and warlike, but with these heroic virtues they joined capacity and cruelty. The Babylonian soldier was not only without fear, but also without mercy. Woe to the enemy against whom the fierce hand was lifted! There was neither quarter nor compassion.

Nearly always engaged in contests with surrounding nations, war became a profession. Accustomed to bloodshed and rapine, the soldiers of the Empire learned to destroy without discrimination, to kill without compassion. They rode their horses and drove their chariots over living and dead, crushing in an indistinguishable mass the innocent with the guilty. The tender and outraged form of woman was thrown with contempt across the braileless bodies of babes. From the mountains that frowned on the thither borders of Luristan to the gateway of Egypt, this iron-hearted, merciless, lascivious soldiery carried the banners of the Empire, and the nations cowered in fear before them.

In their methods and usages of war the Babylonians were very little impressed with the practices of civilized states. Their campaigns were characterized with useless violence and barbarity. The plan of colonizing insurrectionary inhabitants was rigorously followed. All the hardships of such removals were inflicted without mercy. Prisoners taken in battle were either killed or shamelessly mutilated. The unresisting inhabitants of provinces engaged in revolt were visited with indiscriminate vengeance.

These hard, cruel, and relentless features of Babylonian character were little softened by their religion. Albeit, the traveler visiting the great metropolis would have imagined that a people so devoted to the worship of the gods would be incapable of the deeds of cruelty. Temples rose on the right hand and the left. Retinues of priests, engaged in some work peculiar to their sacred offices, were ever in sight. Costly statues of the deities were set up in honor of the unseen, and to attract the gaze of the pious. In no other country, with the possible exception of Egypt, was the ceremonial of religion more costly and elaborate. The kings were the chief worshipers. Princes went devoutly to the temples. Royal favors were poured out without stint in the maintenance of the national faith.

In the might of her power and renown she saw her rivals one by one expire, and in her triumph she arrogated to herself the rank and title of mistress of the world.
“Babylon hath been a golden cup in Jehovah’s hand.”

“O thou that dwellest upon many waters, thine end is come.”

Daniel 4:28-33

> 28 All this came upon the king Nebuchadnezzar. 29 At the end of twelve months he was walking in the royal palace of Babylon. 30 The king spake and said, ‘Is not this great Babylon, which I have built for the royal dwelling-place, by the might of my power and for the glory of my majesty?’ 31 While the word was in the king’s mouth, there fell a voice from heaven, saying, ‘O King Nebuchadnezzar, to thee it is spoken: The kingdom is departed from thee. 32 And thou shalt be driven from men; and thy dwelling shall be with the beasts of the field; thou shalt be made to eat grass as oxen; and seven times shall pass over thee until thou know that the Most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will.’ 33 The same hour was the thing fulfilled upon Nebuchadnezzar: and he was driven from men, and did eat grass as oxen, and his body was wet with the dew of heaven, till his hair was grown like eagles’ feathers, and his nails like birds’ claws.

Ishtar Gate

Nebuchadnezzar saw to it that Babylon was remembered in later years as the greatest city in the world. About 100 years after him the Greek traveller and historian, Herodotus, saw the city under its Persian monarchs, and his comment, ‘it is more splendid than any other city known to us’, was an acknowledgment of Nebuchadnezzar’s amazing achievements.

Not only the enigmatic ‘hanging gardens’, considered one of the seven wonders of the ancient world, but numerous temples, palaces, roads, walls, gates and even a bridge across the Euphrates, which ran through the city, were among the works of this great king. The most spectacular of these monuments to survive is the Ishtar Gate, through which the Processional Way crosses the great walls.

The most remarkable building in Babylon was the temple of Bel. It was pyramidal in shape, having eight stages. The lowest stage was 200 yards square. On the summit a golden statue of Bel, 40 feet high, stood in a shrine. There were also two other golden statues and a golden table in this shrine. At the bottom of the pyramid-temple stood a chapel with a table and two images of gold within it.

JEREMIAH 50 ASV
17 Israel is a hunted sheep; the lions have driven him away: first, the king of Assyria devoured him; and now at last Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon hath broken his bones. Therefore thus saith Jehovah of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I will punish the king of Babylon and his land, as I have punished the king of Assyria.

JEREMIAH 51 ASV
5 For Israel is not forsaken, nor Judah, of his God, of Jehovah of hosts; though their land be full of guilt against the Holy One of Israel. 6 Flee out of the midst of Babylon, and save every man his life; be not cut off in her iniquity: for it is the time of Jehovah's vengeance; he will render unto her a recompense. 7 Babylon hath been a golden cup in Jehovah's hand, that made all the earth drunken: the nations have drunk of her wine; therefore the nations are mad. 8 Babylon is suddenly fallen and destroyed:

11 Make sharp the arrows; hold firm the shields: Jehovah hath stirred up the spirit of the king of the Medes; because his purpose is against Babylon, to destroy it; for it is the vengeance of Jehovah, the vengeance of his temple.

13 O thou that dwellest upon many waters, abundant in treasures, thine end is come, the measure of thy covetousness.

24 And I will render unto Babylon and to all the inhabitants of Chaldea all their evil that they have done in Zion in your sight, saith Jehovah.

41 How is Sheshach taken! and the praise of the whole earth seized! how is Babylon become a desolation among the nations!

44 And I will execute judgment upon Bel in Babylon, and I will bring forth out of his mouth that which he hath swallowed up; and the nations shall not flow any more unto him: yea, the wall of Babylon shall fall.

JEREMIAH 51 ASV
45 My people, go ye out of the midst of her, and save yourselves every man from the fierce anger of Jehovah. 47 Therefore, behold, the days come, that I will execute judgment upon the graven images of Babylon; and her whole land shall be confounded; and all her slain shall fall in the midst of her. 48 Then the heavens and the earth, and all that is therein, shall sing for joy over Babylon; for the destroyers shall come unto her from the north, saith Jehovah.

54 The sound of a cry from Babylon, and of great destruction from the land of the Chaldeans!

57 And I will make drunk her princes and her wise men, her governors and her deputies, and her mighty men; and they shall sleep; perpetual sleep, and not wake, saith the King, whose name is Jehovah of hosts. 58 Thus saith Jehovah of hosts: The broad walls of Babylon shall be utterly overthrown, and her high gates shall be burned with fire;

60 And Jeremiah wrote in a book all the evil that should come upon Babylon, even all these words that are written concerning Babylon. 61 And Jeremiah said to Seraiah, When thou comest to Babylon, then see that thou read all these words, and say, O Jehovah, thou hast spoken concerning this place, to cut it off, that none shall dwell therein, neither man nor beast, but that it shall be desolate for ever. 63 And it shall be, when thou hast made an end of reading this book, that thou shalt bind a stone to it, and cast it into the midst of the Euphrates: 64 and thou shalt say, Thus shall Babylon sink, and shall not rise again because of the evil that I will bring upon her; and they shall be weary.

Thus far are the words of Jeremiah.

Daniel 5 ASV

5 Belshazzar the king made a great feast to a thousand of his lords, and drank wine before the thousand. 2 Belshazzar, while he tasted the wine, commanded to bring the golden and silver vessels which Nebuchadnezzar his father had taken out of the temple which was in Jerusalem; that the king and his lords, his wives and his concubines, might drink therefrom. 3 Then they brought the golden vessels that were taken out of the temple of the house of God which was at Jerusalem; and the king and his lords, his wives and his concubines, drank from them. 4 They drank wine, and praised the gods of gold, of silver, of brass, of iron, of wood, and of stone.

5 In the same hour came forth the fingers of a man's hand, and wrote over against the candlestick upon the plaster of the wall of the king's palace: and the king saw the part of the hand that wrote. 6 Then the king's countenance was changed in him, and his thoughts troubled him; and the joints of his loins were loosed, and his knees smote one against another. 7 The king cried aloud to bring in the enchanters, the Chaldeans, and the soothsayers. The king spake and said to the wise men of Babylon, Whosoever shall read this writing, and show me the interpretation thereof, shall be clothed with purple, and have a chain of gold about his neck, and shall be the third ruler in the kingdom.

Daniel 5 ASV

17 Then Daniel answered and said before the king, Let thy gifts be to thyself, and give thy rewards to another; nevertheless I will read the writing unto the king, and make known to him the interpretation. 18 O thou king, the Most High God gave Nebuchadnezzar thy father the kingdom, and great greatness, and glory and majesty: 19 and because of the greatness that he gave him, all the peoples, nations, and languages trembled and feared before him:

22 And thou son of Belshazzar, hast not humbled thy heart, though thou knewest all this.

25 And this is the writing that was inscribed: Memen, memen, tekel, upharsin. 26 This is the interpretation of the thing: Memen: God hath numbered thy kingdom, and brought it to an end. 27 Tekel, thou art weighed in the balances, and art found wanting. 28 Peres: thy kingdom is divided, and given to the Medes and Persians.

29 Then commanded Belshazzar, and they clothed Daniel with purple, and put a chain of gold about his neck, and made proclamation concerning him, that he should be the third ruler in the kingdom.

30 In that night Belshazzar the Chaldean king was slain. 31 And Darius the Mede received the kingdom, being about three-score and two years old.

3. When Baltasar heard this, he called for Daniel:

And he explained the writing thus:—Maneh. This, if it be expounded in the Greek language, may signify a number, because God hath numbered so long a time for thy life, and for thy government, and that there remains but a small portion. —Thekel. This signifies a weight, and means that God hath weighed thy kingdom in a balance, and finds it going down already. —Pharsela. This also in the Greek tongue, denotes a fragment. God will therefore break thy kingdom in pieces, and divide it among the Medes and Persians.”

Now after a little while both he and the city were taken by Cyrus, the king of Persia, who fought against him; for it was Baltasar, under whom Babylon was taken, when he had reigned seventeen years. And this is the end of the posterity of king Nebuchadnezzar, as history informs us: but when Babylon was taken by Darius, and when he, with his kinsman Cyrus, had put an end to the dominion of the Babylonians, he was sixty-two years old. He was the son of Astyages, and had another name according to the Greeks. Moreover, he took Daniel the prophet, and carried him with him into Media, and honored him very greatly, and kept him with him; for he was one of the three presidents whom he set over his three hundred and sixty provinces; for into so many did Darius part them.

Finally, in B.C. 539, Nabonadius received tidings that Cyrus the Great was marching from Ecbatana, the Median capital, in the direction of Babylon; but as his defenses were completed and the city amply provisioned, the Babylonian monarch felt perfectly secure behind the walls of his capital. Herodotus says that the Persian invader paused half-way between Ecbatana and Babylon, because one of the sacred white horses which drew the chariot of Ormazd had been drowned in crossing a river. Declaring that he would punish the insolent stream, Cyrus employed his soldiers during the whole summer and autumn of B.C. 539 in dispersing the waters of the stream into three hundred and sixty channels.

Cyrus renewed his march upon Babylon in the spring of B.C. 538, crossing the Tigris without opposition and soon appearing before Babylon. The Babylonian army under Nabonadius himself was here drawn up to oppose him. In the battle which ensued the Babylonian king was thoroughly defeated, the greater part of his army seeking refuge inside the walls of the capital, while he himself with a small body of troops fled for safety into the important city of Borissipo, a short distance south-west from Babylon.

In the meantime, the Babylonian crown-prince, Belshazzar, or Bel-shar-nazar, the son of Nabonadius, and the grandson of the illustrious Nebuchadnezzar—supported by the counsels of his mother and the officers of the court—for a time successfully resisted all the Persian assaults, so that Cyrus, almost reduced to despair, resorted to a stratagem whose failure might have cost him dear.

1225 Then king Darius wrote unto all the peoples, nations, and languages, that dwell in all the earth: "Peace be multiplied unto you. 26 I make a decree, that in all the dominion of my kingdom men shall tremble and fear before the God of Daniel: for he is the living God, and abideth for ever, and his kingdom that which is forever, not to be destroyed; and his dominion shall be even unto the end.

In such a case they would have been entirely cut to pieces without being able to make any effectual resistance, or to escape from their perilous position. But as they observed no signs of alarm, but only the shouts of riotous revelry, on the part of the unsuspecting populace, the Persians grew bolder, and, when the revelry was at its height, emerged from the deep river-bed and seized the undefended gateways. The frightened Babylonians at once raised a war-shout and spread the alarm. Swift runners hurried off to "show the King of Babylon that his city was taken at one end," so says the Book of Jeremiah. In the darkness and confusion of the night a frightful massacre occurred, says Xenophon. The drunken revelers were unable to resist. Belshazzar, completely surprised and utterly helpless "at the awful handwriting upon the wall," which appeared at this time, was warned of his danger when too late, and could offer no check to the progress of the assailants, who had the paralyzed populace completely at their mercy. A band of Persians forced their way into the royal palace and slew the astonished Belshazzar on the scene of his sacrilegious revelry. Such is the testimony of Herodotus and Xenophon, of Daniel and Jeremiah. Says the Book of Daniel: "In that night was Belshazzar slain." The triumphant Persians destroyed right and left, with fire and sword. The dawn found Cyrus undisputed master of the mighty Babylon.
Thus saith Jehovah to his *anointed, to Cyrus, whose right *hand I have holden, to subdue nations before him, and I will *loose the loins of kings; to open the doors before him, and the gates shall not be shut: 2 I will go before thee, and *make the rough places smooth; I will break in pieces the doors of brass and cut in sunder the *bars of iron; 3 and I will give thee the *treasures of darkness, and hidden riches of secret places, that thou mayest know that it is I, Jehovah, who *call thee by thy name, even the God of Israel. 4 For *Jacob my servant's sake, and Jehovah my chosen, I have *called thee by thy name: I have *surnamed thee, though thou hast *not known me. 5 I am Jehovah, and *there is none else; *besides me there is no God. 6 I will *gird thee, though thou hast not known me; 6 that *they may know *from the rising of the sun, and from the west, that there is *none besides me: I am Jehovah, and there is none else.

"Cyrus, my shepherd, saying of Jerusalem, She shall be built!"

ISAIAH 44 ASV

24 Thus saith Jehovah, thy Redeemer, and he that formed thee from the womb: I am Jehovah, that maketh all things; that stretcheth forth the heavens alone; that spreadeth abroad the earth (who is with me?); 25 that frustrateth the signs of the liars, and maketh diviners mad; that turneth wise men backward, and maketh their knowledge foolish; 26 that confirmeth the word of his servant, and performeth the counsel of his messengers; that saith of Jerusalem, She shall be inhabited; and of the cities of Judah, They shall be built, and I will raise up the waste places thereof; 27 that saith to the deep, Be dry, and I will dry up thy rivers; 28 that saith of Cyrus, He is my shepherd, and shall perform all my pleasure, even saying of Jerusalem, She shall be built; and of the temple, Thy foundation shall be laid.

EZRA 1 ASV

1 Now in the first year of Cyrus king of Persia, that the word of Jehovah by the mouth of Jeremiah might be accomplished, Jehovah stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia, so that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom, and put it also in writing, saying, 2 Thus saith Cyrus king of Persia, All the kingdoms of the earth hath Jehovah, the God of heaven, given me; and he hath charged me to build him a house in Jerusalem, which is in Judah.

EZRA 5 ASV

13 But in the first year of Cyrus king of Babylon, Cyrus the king made a decree to build this house of God. 14 And the gold and silver vessels also of the house of God, which Nebuchadnezzar took out of the temple that was in Jerusalem, and brought into the temple of Babylon, those did Cyrus the king take out of the temple of Babylon, and they were delivered unto one whose name was Sheshbazzar, whom he had made governor; 15 and he said unto him, Take these vessels, go, put them in the temple that is in Jerusalem, and let the house of God be built in its place.

ANTIQIUITIES OF THE JEWS, BOOK XI, CHAP. 1

§ 1. In the first year of the reign of Cyrus, which was the seventieth from the day that our people were removed out of their own land into Babylon, God commiserated the captivity and calamity of these poor people, according as he had foretold to them by Jeremiah the prophet, before the destruction of the city, that after they had served Nebuchadnezzar and his posterity, and after they had undergone that servitude seventy years, he would restore them again to the land of their fathers, and they should build their temple, and enjoy their ancient prosperity; and these things God did afford them; for he stirred up the mind of Cyrus, and made him write this throughout all Asia:—"Thus saith Cyrus the King:—Since God Almighty hath appointed me to be king of the habitable earth, I believe that he is that God which the nation of the Israelites worship; for indeed he foretold my name by the prophets: and that I should build him a house at Jerusalem, in the country of Judea.

2. This was known to Cyrus by his reading the book which Isaiah left behind him of his prophecies; for this prophet said that God had spoken thus to him in a secret vision:—"My will is, that Cyrus, whom I have appointed to be king over many and great nations, send back my people to their own land, and build my temple." This was foretold by Isaiah one hundred and forty years before the temple was demolished. Accordingly, when Cyrus read this, and admired the divine power, an earnest desire and ambition seized upon him to fulfill what was so written; so he called for the most eminent Jews that were in Babylon, and said to them, that he gave them leave to go back to their own country, and to rebuild their city Jerusalem, and the temple of God.

Cyrus also sent back to them the vessels of God which king Nebuchadnezzar had pillaged out of the temple, and carried to Babylon.

DARIUS KING OF PERSIA

6 Then Darius the king made a decree, and search was made in the house of the archives, where the treasures were laid up in Babylon. 2 And there was found at Achmetha, in the palace that is in the province of Media, a roll, and therein was thus written for a record: 3 In the first year of Cyrus the king, Cyrus the king made a decree: Concerning the house of God at Jerusalem, let the house be built.

1 Aram. That is, books.

5 And also let the gold and silver vessels of the house of God, which Nebuchadnezzar took forth out of the temple which is at Jerusalem, and brought unto Babylon, be restored, and brought again unto the temple which is at Jerusalem, every one to its place; and thou shalt put them in the house of God.

ZOROASTRIANISM AND MAGISM

The great Iranian religion—the faith of the Bactrians, and of the Medes and Persians for many centuries—was founded by the ancient Bactrian sage and prophet, Zoroaster, or Zarathustra; and its sacred book was the Zend-Avesta. Zoroaster claimed divine inspiration and professed to have occasional revelations from the Supreme Being, delivering them to his people in a mystical form and securing their acceptance as divine by the Bactrian people, after which his religion gradually spread among the other Iranian nations. It was the religion of the Persians until driven out by the intolerance of Mohammedanism in the seventh century after Christ.

Plutarch gives the following account of Zoroaster and his precepts:

"Some believe that there are two Gods—as it were, two rival workmen; the one whereof they make to be the maker of good things, and the other bad. And some call the better of these God, and the other Daemon; Mithras was in the middle betwixt them. For which cause, the Persians called Mithras the mediator. And they tell us that he first taught mankind to make vows and offerings of thanksgiving to the one, and to offer averters and feral sacrifice to the other.

Zoroaster taught providence, aimed at holiness, and emphasized creation. He maintained that salvation was only wrought out by an eternal battle between good and evil.

Spiritual evil—the evil having its origin in a depraved heart and a will turned from goodness—tormented him most. His meditations convinced him that all the woes of the world had its origin in sin, and that the root of sin was in the demonic world.

Firmly believing that a great conflict was perpetually in progress between the powers of Light and Darkness, he urged all good men to take part in the war, and battle for Ahura-Mazda, (Ormazd), the good God, against Angra-Mainyus (Ahriman), the dark and evil tempter.

The religion of the Persians was identical with that of the Medes in its earliest form, consisting chiefly of the worship of Ahura-Mazda.

The principal feature of the Zoroastrian religion during the first period was the acknowledgment and worship of One Supreme God, Ahura-Mazda, or Ormazd, "the Lord of Heaven," "the Giver of heaven and earth," "He who disposed of thrones and dispensed happiness." The first place in Persian inscriptions and decrees is assigned to the "Great God, Ormazd." Every Persian monarch of whom we have inscriptions, each more than two lines long, mentions Ahura-Mazda as his upholder; and the early Achaemenian kings did not name any other god. All rule "by the grace of Ahura-Mazda."

Idolatry is entirely repugnant to the spirit of the Zend-Avesta, and Herodotus says that the Persians knew nothing of images of gods. Nevertheless, they had symbolic representations of their deities, and they adopted the forms of their religious symbolism from idolatrous nations.

During the prevalence of the purer and earlier form of the Persian religion, the Persian kings, animated by a fierce iconoclastic spirit, seized every opportunity to show their hatred and contempt for the idolatries of the surrounding nations, burning temples, confiscating or destroying images, scourging or slaying idolatrous priests, stopping festivals.

During their invasion of Greece they burned every temple they came near, and in their first invasion and conquest of Egypt they outraged all the religious feelings of the people.

This period, when pure Zoroastrianism prevailed, was the time when a religious sympathy drew together the Persian and Jewish nations. Cyrus the Great seems to have identified Jehovah with Ahura-Mazda; and, accepting the prophecy of Isaiah as a Divine command, undertook the rebuilding of their Temple for a people, who, like his own, permitted no image to defile their sanctuary. Darius Hystaspes likewise encouraged the completion of the enterprise.
And when the people saw that Moses was delayed to come down from the mount, the people gathered themselves together unto Aaron, and said unto him, Up, make us gods, which shall go before us; for as for "this Moses, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we know not what is become of him." 2 And Aaron said unto them, "Break off the golden rings which are in the ears of your wives, of your sons, and of your daughters, and bring them unto me. 3 And all the people brake off the golden rings which were in their ears, and brought them unto Aaron. 4 And he received it at their hand, and fashioned it with a graving tool, and made it a "molten calf;" and they said, "These are thy gods, O Israel, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt. 5 And when Aaron saw this, he built an altar before it; and Aaron made proclamation, and said, To-morrow shall be a feast to Jehovah.
The adversary can make idolatry look like TRUTH. Following are short passages from long articles.

ZOROASTRIANISM AND MAGISM

Modern Orientalists and antiquarians differ widely as to the age of the books of the Zend-Avesta, and as to the period at which Zoroaster lived.

Says Zarathustra: "I worship and adore the Creator of all things, Ahura-Mazda (Ormazd), full of light! I worship the Amêsha-Spentas (Amshaspands, the seven archangels, or protecting spirits)! I worship the body of the primal Bull, the soul of the Bull! I invoke thee, O Fire, thou son of Ormazd, most rapid of the Immortals! I invoke Mithra, the lofty, the immortal, the pure, the sun, the ruler, the quick Horse, the eye of Ormazd!

Twelve companies were arranged in the twelve signs of the Zodiac. These were all grouped into four great divisions.

Ahriman sprang aloft fearlessly, knowing that his time had arrived. He was followed by his host, but he only reached the heavens, his troops remaining behind. Seized with a shudder, he sprang from heaven upon the earth in the form of a serpent, penetrating to the earth's center, and entering into everything which he found upon the earth. Passing into the primal Bull, and even into fire, the visible symbol of Ormazd, he defied it with smoke and vapor.

The good soul then proceeds to the golden throne in paradise. The wicked fall over the bridge of Chinevat, into the abyss of Duzahhk, where they find themselves in the realm of Angra-Mainyu.s, the world of Darkness, where they are forced to remain in misery and woe, tormented by the Daevas. Ormazd fixes the duration of the punishment, and some are redeemed sooner by means of the prayers and intercessions of their friends, but many must stay until the resurrection of the dead.

Ormazd will send his Prophet, Sosioch, and cause the conversion of mankind, to be followed by the general resurrection.

Ormazd will clothe the bones of men with new flesh, and friends and relatives will again recognize each other. Then comes the great division of the just from the wicked.

But Magism, defeated in this effort to establish itself by force, began to work more quietly and insidiously, and by degrees and apparently almost imperceptibly grew into favor, mingling itself with the Zoroastrian creed, simply adding to it, but not displacing it. The later Persian system was a union of the Magian elemental worship and the Dualism of Zoroaster; the Magi became the national priesthood; the rites and ceremonies of the two religions were commingled; and two originally separate and distinct, but not wholly antagonistic, creeds were blended into one system. The name of Zoroaster was still cherished in fond remembrance by the Persian nation, while practically Magian rites predominated, and the later Greeks called the mixed religion "the Magism of Zoroaster."

Having accepted a fusion of Magism with their original Zoroastrian creed, the Persians thereafter gradually adopted such portions of other religious systems as attracted them and with which they had been brought into close contact. Before the time of Herodotus they had adopted the Babylonian worship of a Nature-goddess, identified by the Greeks at one time with their Aphrodite, at another time with Artemis, at another time with Herâ; thus compromising with one of the grossest of the idolatries which they despised and detested in theory. Thus the Babylonian goddess Nana, the counterpart of the Grecian Aphrodite and the Roman Venus — was accepted by the Persians under the name of Nana, Anah, Araith, or Târuza, and soon became one of the chief objects of Persian worship. Actual idolatry was at first avoided, but Artaxerxes Mene-mon, the victor of Cunaxa and a zealous devotee of the goddess, not satisfied with the mutilated worship which then prevailed, sought to introduce images of this goddess into all the chief cities of the empire — Susa, Persepolis, Babylon, Ecbatana, Damascus, Sardis, Bactria.
Mythology would not exist worldwide, as it has done for 6000 years, without the adversary Zeus. [Satan]

Zoroastrianism and Magism

The Magian priest-caste held a high rank. A priest always mediated between the Deity and the worshiper, and intervened in every rite of religion.

The followers of Zoroaster had at first been intolerant and exclusive, and regarded the faith of their Aryan kinsmen, the Sanskritic Hindus, with aversion and contempt. They had fiercely opposed idolatry.

Thus Zoroastrianism, in its contact with Magism, was impressed favorably, and the result was the development of a new system by the fusion of the two. Magism furnished a hierarchy to support the throne and add splendor and dignity to the court, while it overawed the subject class by its supposed possession of supernatural powers and of the right of mediating between man and God. It supplied a picturesque worship, which at once gratified the senses and excited the fancy. It gave scope to man's passion for the marvelous by its incantations, its divining-rods, its omen-reading, and its dream-expounding.

The following passages are from the oldest part of the Avesta, the Gathas:

"I desire by my prayer with uplifted hands this joy—the pure works of the Holy Spirit, Mazda... a disposition to perform good actions... and pure gifts for both worlds, the bodily and spiritual."

"Teach thou me, Ahura-Mazda, out of thyself from heaven: by thy mouth, whereby the world first arose."

I am contented and agreed in the hope of the resurrection.

The Zend-Avesta was written in the ancient sacred Zend language. The language of the Medes and Persians belonged to the form of speech known to moderns as the Aryan, or Indo-European.

The writing was from left to right, as with the Aryan nations in general.

The Persian writing has been transmitted to us almost entirely upon stone.
Thus saith Jehovah to his anointed, to Cyrus.--For Jacob my servant's sake, and Israel my chosen, I have called thee by thy name: I have surnamed thee, though thou hast not known me. I am Jehovah, and there is none else; besides me there is no God.

ISAIAH 45:1,4,5 ASV

In his domestic life Cyrus seems to have displayed the same moderation and simplicity which marked his conduct in public affairs. Herodotus tells us that he had but one wife, Cassandane, the daughter of Pharnases, a member of the royal family. His sons were Cambyses and Smerdis, on the authority of Herodotus and the Behistun Inscription. According to Herodotus, his daughters were Atossa, Artystone and a third whose name is not known. The wife of Cyrus died before her husband, who greatly mourned for her. Xenophon and Ctesias state that just before his own death he sought to guard against a disputed succession by leaving the inheritance of his great empire to his elder son, Cambyses, and entrusting the actual government of several large and important provinces to his younger son, Smerdis. But his plan subjected both his sons to untimely ends, as we shall presently see.

No sooner was Cambyses seated upon the throne, B. C. 529, than he grew jealous of his brother; and the Behistun Inscription informs us that he ordered him to be privately put to death, and so secretly was this done that the manner, and even the fact, of his death was known to only a few.

Meanwhile Cambyses set about executing his father's plans for the conquest of Egypt.

Cambyses entered Egypt in B. C. 525.

Having completed the subjection of Egypt, Cambyses started on his return to Persia. When he had reached Syria he received the startling intelligence that a revolution had occurred in Persia.

Cambyses, in his momentary despondency at the unexpected event, committed suicide, by inflicting upon himself a wound with his own sword, which caused his death in a few days, B. C. 522. This is the account from Herodotus. The Behistun Inscription states that the self-inflicted wound was intentional.

DARIUS HYSTASPES ascended the Persian throne B. C. 521.
"An erroneous impression was at one time in circulation that the information obtained from the inscriptions was adverse to Scripture. But so much was it the reverse of this, that if they were to draw up a scheme of chronology from the inscriptions, without having seen the statements of the Scriptures, they would find it coincide on every important point."

Darius Hystaspes was the first who designed and carried into execution an entirely new system of government. Thirlwall deservedly styled him "the first true founder of the Persian state." He found the Medo-Persian Empire a conglomerate mass of heterogeneous elements, held together loosely by the solitary tie of subjection to a general head; he left it a compact, consolidated and well-organized body, bound together by the bonds of a well-regulated, compact and homogeneous system, permanently established in every province. Thus Darius Hystaspes established the first real empire in all history.

Thus the Greeks saw that the great empire built up by Cyrus the Great, by Cambyses and Darius Hystaspes, had fallen from its high estate, and that both its dimensions and its resources had been seriously diminished.

In the spring of B.C. 331, Alexander retraced his triumphant march through Syria, and, directing his course toward the heart of the Medo-Persian Empire, crossed the Euphrates at Thapsacus, traversed Mesopotamia and encountered Darius Codomannus a second time near the Assyrian city of Arbela, on the plain of Gaugamela, east of the Tigris.

LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL HISTORY

With only forty-seven thousand men Alexander totally defeated and routed the immense hosts of Darius, said to number over a million men, in the great battle of Arbela, which was the death-blow to the Medo-Persian Empire.

Darius Codomannus fled to the city of Arbela, about twenty miles distant from the battle-field. Here the unfortunate monarch was seized by his own officers, headed by the treacherous Bessus, satrap of Bactriana, who, seeing their master's fortunes ruined, had contrived a plan to deliver him to Alexander and thereby advance their own interests.

The next day Alexander arrived at Arbela and took possession of the king's treasures; after which he went in hot pursuit of Darius and his fleeing officers. Hemmed in on all sides and finding escape impossible, the treacherous Bessus and his fellow-conspirators basely turned upon their king, mortally wounding him and leaving him to die by the roadside in the mountains. A Macedonian soldier discovered the former lord of Asia in his dying condition, and, in response to his appeal, brought him a cup of cold water. Darius sincerely thanked his generous enemy, expressing sorrow at his inability to reward him for this kindness to him in his dying moments. He commended the soldier to the notice of Alexander, who he said had sufficient magnanimity to grant his dying request, and then expired. Alexander arrived shortly after his death, and, deeply affected, covered the dead body of the last Medo-Persian king with his own royal mantle, and directed that a magnificent funeral procession should convey it to Pasargad, where it was interred in the tombs of his illustrious ancestors, with royal honors. The conqueror also provided for the fitting education of the children of his fallen adversary.

Although the battle of Arbela sealed the fate of the Medo-Persian Empire, the reduction of its north-eastern and eastern provinces occupied the conqueror several years longer; but their final conquest made Alexander lord of Asia, and master of the vast empire founded by Cyrus the Great.

HISTORY OF GREECE, Victor Duruy
Introduction by J.P. Mahaffy

Nobody now attributes any real leading to the Romans in art, in philosophy, in the sciences, nay, even in the science of politics. If their literature was in some respects great, every Roman knows and confesses that this greatness is due to the Greeks; if their practical treatment of law and politics was certainly admirable, the theory of the latter was derived from Hellenic speculation.

The history of religion, therefore, will be found to rest, like everything good which we possess, partly upon a Greek basis; but of course mainly on that portion of Greek history which has only recently risen into public notice among our scholars,—the later and the spiritual development of the nation after the conquests of Alexander had submitted the ancient world to its sway.

The battle of Ipsus resulted in a permanent division of the vast empire founded by Alexander the Great, after twenty-two years of sanguinary wars among his generals, during which the whole of Alexander's family and all his relatives perished. The triumphant Seleucus and Lysimachus divided the dominion of Asia between them; Seleucus receiving the Euphrates valley, Northern Syria, Cappadocia and part of Phrygia; while Lysimachus obtained the remainder of Asia Minor in addition to Thrace, which extended along the western shores of the Euxine as far north as the mouths of the Danube. Ptolemy was allowed to hold Egypt, along with Palestine, Phoenicia and Crete; while Cassander, who was allowed to reign in Macedon and Greece until his death.

SYRACUSE
A gold piece of Syracuse struck at the time of the tyrant Timoleon (367-344 B.C.) portrays the head of Zeus, father of all the gods, who was revered throughout the Greek world. The inscription is the Greek form of "Zos, Eleutheros"

The first known Roman gold coin, a staters of 215 B.C., was a short-lived emergency issue struck during the early part of the Second Punic War (218-201 B.C.). The STATES presents a portrait of Jupiter, the double-headed god of beginnings and endings. The first month of the Roman year was named for this deity, as in our own January.

Rome, Lucius Manlius (52-51 B.C.)

The obverse has a helmeted head of Rome.

Rome, Nerva (54-68 A.D.)

The reverse of the aureus shows Jupiter, the Roman equivalent of Zeus, father of all the other gods. Jupiter holds a thunderbolt in one hand, a sceptre in the other. The inscription PATER PATRORVM means "In the custody of Jupiter."

BRITANNICA ——OLYMPIC GAMES

Just how far back in history organized athletic contests were first held remains a matter of doubt, but it is reasonably certain that they occurred in Greece, at least, some 3,500 years ago.

However ancient in origin, by the end of the 6th century B.C. at least four of the Greek sporting festivals, sometimes known as classical games, had achieved major importance. They were the Olympic Games held at Olympia; the Pythian Games at Delphi; the Nemean Games at Nemea; and the Isthmian Games at Corinth. Later, similar festivals were held in nearly 150 cities as far afield as Rome, Naples, Odessus, Antioch, and Alexandria.

According to one legend they were founded by Hercules, son of Alcmena. The Games, like all Greek games, were an intrinsic part of a religious festival.

EARLY HISTORY

Greece. Of all the games held throughout Greece, those staged at Olympia in honour of Zeus are the most famous.

Rome. Greece lost its independence to Rome in the middle of the 2nd century A.D., and the support for the competitions at Olympia and other places fell off considerably in the next century. The Romans looked on athletics with contempt—to strip naked and to contend in public was degrading in the eyes of the Roman citizen. The Romans realized the value of the Greek festivals, however, and Augustus, who had a genuine love for athletics, staged athletic games in a temporary wooden stadium erected near the Circus Maximus. Nero was also a major patron of the festivals in Greece. By the 4th century A.D., Rome, with its population of over 1,000,000, had well over 150 holidays for games. There was chariot racing in the hippodrome and horse racing in the Circus Maximus, with room for more than 250,000 spectators. In an amphitheatre with accommodation for 50,000, animals and human beings were maimed and slaughtered in the name of sport.

Indeed, public games were held in abundance—games in honour of the gods, some of which were said to go back to the foundation of the city. But through all this, athletic events occupied a secondary position. The only ones that really interested the Romans were the fighting events—wrestling, boxing, and the pankration. The main difference between the Greek and Roman attitude was that the Roman festivals were described as ludii (games), the Greek as agonés (contests). The Greeks originally organized their games for the competitors, the Romans for the public. One was primarily competition, the other entertainment; and it is not unreasonable to suggest that the Greeks took an "amateur" view of sport, the Romans a professional one.

TODAY

When the head of state has reached his place in the tribune, he is greeted with the national anthem of his country, and the parade of competitors begins. The Greek team is always the first to enter the stadium, and the other nations follow in alphabetical order as determined by the language of the organizing country.

A fanfare of trumpets is sounded as the Olympic flag is slowly raised; pigeons are released, symbolically to fly to the countries of the world with the news that the Games are open.

The Olympic flame is then carried into the stadium by the last of the runners who have brought it from Olympia, Greece.

“And the fourth kingdom shall be strong as iron, forasmuch as iron breaketh in pieces and subdueth all things; and as iron that crusheth all these, shall it break in pieces and crush.”
ROME.—THE FIRST CAESARS. FLOURISHING PERIOD OF THE EMPIRE.

JULIUS CAESAR

In B.C. 63 Caesar became Pontifex Max-imus, or religious superintendent; in B.C. 62 he was made Praetor; and in B.C. 61 he was appointed Proconsul of Hispania Ba-tica (Farther Spain).

Caesar was then (B.C. 61) thirty-nine years old, and his great career had now dawned upon Roman history. He was a model of manly beauty. He was conscious of his personal attractions, and his enemies accused him of dandyism. He had retained a perfect bodily vigor in spite of all his early dissipations, and he had now adopted temperate habits. He was skillful in fencing, riding and swimming, and possessed wonderful capacity for performing sudden tiresome journeys. He generally traveled by night, in order to gain time. His vigor of mind was equal to that of his body. He possessed surprising power of intuition. He had a wonderfully retentive memory, never forgetting anything.

As a necessary consequence, the possessor of such admirable qualities was a statesman. “From his early youth Caesar was a statesman in the deepest sense of the term, and his aim was the highest which man is allowed to propose to himself—the political, military, intellectual and moral regeneration of his own deeply decayed nation, and of the still more deeply decayed Hellenic nation, intimately akin to his own.”

The military talents displayed by Caesar in his conquest of Gaul rank him as one of the greatest generals of all time. While in Gaul, he is said to have conquered three hundred nations, subdued three millions of people, killed one million, and reduced another million to slavery. Caesar gave an account of his campaigns in Gaul in his Commentaries, which he wrote while conducting those campaigns.

The Ides (15th) of March, B.C. 44, was the day fixed upon for the assassination to take place. The augurs had foretold that this day would be fatal to Caesar.

Thus perished the greatest man that Rome—some say the greatest man that the world—ever produced. He was a great warrior, statesman, orator and historian.

CAESAR AUGUSTUS

The Roman Republic ended, and the Roman Empire began, in the year B.C. 27, when the Roman Senate conferred upon Octavius sovereign powers with the titles of Augustus (the Divine) and Imperator (Emperor); and thenceforth he was called Augustus, instead of Octavius.

From the battle of Actium, the Roman Empire may be said to have really dated, as Octavius then became sole master of the Roman world (B.C. 32); though it was a few years later (B.C. 27) when the Roman Senate conferred upon him all the powers of sovereignty with the titles of Augustus (the Divine) and Imperator, or Emperor (chief commander); and gave his name to the sixth (now eighth) month, as the name of Julius Caesar had been given to the fifth (now seventh) month. Octavius himself dated his Empire from the battle of Actium, when he was thirty-two years of age. Dating from that event, his reign lasted forty-five years. No sooner had he thus become master of the Roman world than he at once proceeded to establish an imperial monarchy under republican forms upon the ruins of the Republic.

All the countries of Europe, Asia and Africa surrounding the Mediterranean had now become absorbed in the dominion of the seven-hilled city on the Tiber. The only rival of this grand and magnificent empire was the Parthian Empire on its eastern border.

The city, during the prosperous days of the Empire, contained a population of over four millions.

In the zenith of its splendor and glory, “the Eternal City” contained four hundred and twenty temples, five regular theatres, two amphitheatres, and seven extensive circuses.

Those provinces which temporarily formed parts of the Empire were conquered between the years A.D. 14 and A.D. 114. The most important of these were the Agri Decumates and Dacia, in Europe; and Armenia, Mesopotamia and Assyria, in Asia.

“The feet and toes, part of potters’ clay, and part of iron,”
"It shall be a divided kingdom; but there shall be in it of the strength of the iron, forasmuch as thou sawest the iron mixed with miry clay."

Daniel 2:41 ASV

The number of toes is not given because it is of no concern. Each toe is a mixture of iron and clay and may consist of any number of nations from time to time.

Cyclopedia of Universal History Vol. 3, p. 331

To the reign of Constantine must be referred the origin of those movements which resulted in the establishment of an Eastern and a Western Empire.

With the establishment of the capital of the Empire at Constantinople, a great tide of population set in thitherward from the West. The Imperial court drew to itself the wealth, the rank, the luxury which had previously centered at Rome. Great was the gain from an administrative point of view of the transfer of the seat of government. Rome was far displaced from the geographical center of the Imperial dominions. Constantinople was a natural focus. Around her lay the provinces of the Empire. Within her walls was gathered the remaining culture of the Greeks. Three continents lay at her feet.

The reign of Constantine covered a period of thirty-one years. He died at Nicomedia in A.D. 337.

History of the World, pp. 276, 7

Co-existence, forced upon the Romans, did not lead to fraternity. Intermarriage was still forbidden. Neither common humanity nor a common religion could overcome the ressentiment both peoples felt for alien habits and customs. Sophisticated, wealthy Roman subjects owning vast estates, living a life of fairly cultured ease, had to accept as superior crude and illiterate people destitute of the elements of civilized life. Their domestic and sanitary habits, the stench of their bodies and clothes, their food and the way they ate it, their beer and their drunken boor—these poisoned life for the Romans. In Aquitaine and southern Gaul co-existence was unavoidable, with the Visigoths as nominal allies of the emperors, none of whom was able to interfere.
While the Western Roman Empire was rapidly falling to pieces, the Eastern Roman, or Greek Empire, with its capital at Constantinople, had become firmly and securely established as an independent and separate monarchy under Arcadius, the elder son of Theodosius the Great, and his successors. The Eastern Emperor assumed and obstinately retained the vain and finally fictitious title of "Emperor of the Romans."

The Eastern Empire extended from the Adriatic on the west to the Tigris on the east.

The populous provinces of the Empire were seats of art and learning, of luxury and wealth; and the inhabitants of those provinces, who had adopted the Greek language and manners, considered themselves the most civilized and enlightened portion of mankind.

The "Clay" Peoples Invade the Roman Empire
Ostrogoths, Visigoths, Vandals, Lombards, Burgundians, etc.

The Arabs are a Semitic people, thus belonging to the same great ethnological stock with the ancient Assyrians, Babylonians, Syrians, Hebrews, Phoenicians and Carthaginians. Of the seven great Semitic nations the Arabs only remained unknown and undistinguished until the time of Mohammed.

The essential doctrine of Mohammed's religion at this time was the Unity of God and His supremacy and providence. The duty of this new religion was Islam, or submission to the Divine will.

These two decisive battles sealed the fate of Syria, which was thus lost to the dominion of the Eastern Roman Emperor;

Before the final conquest of Persia by the Moslems, Egypt had been wrested from the Eastern Roman Empire and brought under the Saracen dominion.
LET US TRY TO DRAW SOME CONCLUSIONS.

"And the fourth kingdom shall be strong as iron, forasmuch as iron breaketh in pieces and subdueth all things; and as iron that crusheth all these, shall it break in pieces and crush."

FIRST CONCLUSION—THE IRON KINGDOM (ROME) DID BREAK IN PIECES AND CRUSH.

"Thou sawest till that a stone was cut out without hands, which smote the image upon its feet that were of iron and clay, and brake them in pieces. Then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and the gold, broken in pieces together, and became like the chaff of the summer threshing-floors."

DANIEL 2:34,35. (ABOVE) DANIEL 2:40 ASV

SECOND CONCLUSION—THERE IS TO BE ANOTHER BREAKING IN PIECES.

THIRD CONCLUSION—THIS BREAKING IS TO BE MUCH MORE DESTRUCTIVE.

THIRD CONCLUSION—THE ASSYRIAN EMPIRE

Assyria was twice conquered by the Romans—both times in the second century of the Christian era—first by the Emperor Trajan, and afterwards by Septimius Severus; but was soon relinquished each time.

FOURTH CONCLUSION—"BABYLON", THE HEAD OF GOLD WAS NEVER INCLUDED IN THE FEET.

V. 35 (iron, clay, brass) silver, gold

V. 45 (iron, brass, clay, silver, gold

FIFTH CONCLUSION—THE IMAGE HAS BEEN STANDING READY FOR THE STONE.
The toes of the feet were part of iron, and part of clay.

Review Pages 30 and 31. Many people make a reference to ten toes, allowing that there are ten toes it does not indicate that there are ten nations. Scripture does not say "some" toes are iron and "some" toes are clay, but Scripture says that the toes are part iron and part clay. Therefore, each toe may represent what is several nations.

The word part occurs 6 times in this chapter. When part refers to feet you could not say "some" feet are iron and "some" feet are clay. Many parts of the old Roman and Greek empires lie among remnants of old clay nations.

Since I believe that all Scripture is God-breathed (2 Timothy 3:16) I believe that the breaking sequence (left to right) as given is important.

NOTE THE BREAKING SEQUENCE.

v.35 (iron, clay, brass, silver, gold
v.45 iron, brass, clay, silver, gold

I believe the difference in the sequence indicates that the iron kingdom and the brass kingdom will be mixed with clay kingdoms when the stone strikes the image.

We must understand:

those kings
the stone
the mountain
without hands

re-examine the image thus far.

British occupation and the mandatory regime. The merging of the three provinces of Mosul, Baghdad, and Basra into one political entity and the creation of a nation out of the diverse religious and ethnic elements inhabiting these lands was accomplished by the events and circumstances following World War I. Action undertaken by the British military authorities during the war and the upsurge of nationalism after the war helped determine the shape of the new Iraqi state and the course of events during the postwar years, until Iraq finally emerged as an independent political entity in 1932.

Balfour Declaration

An important document in the form of a letter issued by the British Government on November 2, 1917, and signed by the Foreign Secretary Lord Arthur James Balfour. The letter, addressed to Lord Rothschild, reads in part: "His Majesty's Government view with favour the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people, and will use their best endeavors to facilitate the achievement of this object . . ." The Declaration was then approved by France, Italy, Japan and the United States.

This recognition of the claim of the Jewish people to their historical homeland gave new hope to the Zionist movement and started a period of mass immigration and the establishment of Jewish settlements in Palestine, which in the course of thirty years paved the way for the establishment of the State of Israel.

Will Jerusalem be attacked by Gentile powers again?

"Behold, a day of Jehovah cometh, when thy spoil shall be divided in the midst of thee. For I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle; and the city shall be taken, and the houses rifled, and the women ravished; and half of the city shall go forth into captivity, and the residue of the people shall not be cut off from the city. Then shall Jehovah go forth, and fight against those nations, as when he fought in the day of battle. * "

--- THE ZOHAR, Vol.5.p.29

R. Hiya discoursed on the verse: "Behold a day of the Lord cometh when thy spoil shall be divided in the midst of thee" (Zech. xiv, 1). 'This day', he said, 'has been fixed from the creation of the world for punishing the wicked and for God to take vengeance on those that afflict Israel.'

TENTH CONCLUSION--THE RETURNING OF JEWS TO ISRAEL IS A DAILY EVENT THAT ALL THE WORLD IS WITNESSING.

JEREMIAH 51:25 ASV

25 Behold, I am against thee, O destroying mountain, saith Jehovah, which destroyest all the earth; and I will stretch out my hand upon thee, and roll thee down from the rocks, and will make thee a "burnt mountain."

ELEVENTH CONCLUSION—FIGURATIVELY A MOUNTAIN IN SCRIPTURE INDICATES A KINGDOM.

TWELFTH CONCLUSION—A STONE CUT OUT OF A MOUNTAIN ( KINGDOM) CAN NOT REPRESENT JESUS WHO CREATED THE KINGDOM.

MICAH 4:11—13 ASV

11 And now many nations are assembled against thee, that say, Let her be defiled, and let our eye see our desire upon Zion. 12 But they know not the thoughts of Jehovah, neither understand they his counsel; for he hath gathered them as the sheaves to the threshing-floor. 13 Arise and thresh, O daughter of Zion; for I will make thy horn iron, and I will make thy hoofs brass; and thou shalt beat in pieces many people: and I will devote their gain unto Jehovah, and their substance unto the Lord of the whole earth.

COMPARE THESE PASSAGES WITH THE SCRIPTURES ON PAGES 32, 33 AND 35.

ISAIAH 41:8,9,15,16 ASV

8 But thou, Israel, my servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham my friend, 9 thou whom I have taken hold of from the ends of the earth, and called from the corners thereof, and said unto thee, Thou art my servant, I have chosen thee and not cast thee away;

15 Behold, I have made thee to be a new sharp threshing instrument having teeth: thou shalt thresh the mountains, and beat them small, and shalt make the hills as chaff. 16 Thou shalt winnow them, and the wind shall carry them away, and the whirlwind shall scatter them; and thou shalt rejoice in Jehovah, thou shalt glory in the Holy One of Israel.

THIRTEENTH CONCLUSION—THE DESTRUCTION BY THE STONE IS OTHER PLACES IN SCRIPTURE ASCRIBED TO ISRAEL.

FOURTEENTH CONCLUSION—PRESENT-DAY ISRAEL WAS CUT OUT OF THE OLD KINGDOM OF ISRAEL BY THE UNITED NATIONS WITHOUT FIGHTING.

SEE PAGE 35.

ZECHARIAH 12:2,3 ASV

2 Behold, I will make Jerusalem a cup of reeling unto all the peoples round about, and upon Judah also shall it be in the siege against Jerusalem.

3 And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will make Jerusalem a burdensome stone for all the peoples; all that burden themselves with it shall be sore wounded; and all the nations of the earth shall be gathered together against it.

FIFTEENTH CONCLUSION—JERUSALEM IS CALLED A BURDENSOME STONE.
44 And in the days of those kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed. It shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever.

45 Forasmuch as thou sawest that a stone was cut out of the mountain without hands,

Similarly Jacob said: "For dealing with Esau these blessings will suffice me, but the others I will keep in reserve against the time when my children will need them to withstand all those monarchs and rulers of the earth." When that time will come all those blessings will become operative, and the world will be established on a firm foundation. From that day onward that kingdom will gain ascendency over all other kingdoms, and will endure for ever, as it is written: "It shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, but it shall stand for ever" (Dan. 2:44). This is "the stone that was cut out of the mountain without hands, etc." (Ibid.,45). The same stone is alluded to in the words: "From thence, from the Shepherd, the stone of Israel" (Gen.49;24). This stone is the Community of Israel.
